High interest in Archstone

By Sally Penney

ARCHSTONE Developments launched its latest development of nine brand new homes in Braishfield last week. The agent, Morris Dibben Bradford & Bingley was not surprised by the level of interest shown in these imaginative homes due to the popularity of the village, the very high standard of specification and build being offered, and the rarity of such a select development of quality homes coming on to the market.

Meadow View when complete will consist of just nine homes of individual design, each house type being slightly different.

The style of the overall development is sympathetic to the semi-rural nature of the village of Braishfield and particular attention has been paid to the materials used which have been chosen to reflect those of a typical traditional Hampshire village.

The cottage style homes, ranging from a pair of two bedroom semi-detached houses, three bedroom detached and semi-detached houses to larger four and five bedroom detached properties, all have private garaging with the larger homes benefiting from double garages and spacious gardens too.

With construction now underway, Archstone Developments is on schedule to have the homes ready for occupation from late summer this year but there is no time for complacency as these homes have been released for sale off plan.

Prices demonstrate the diverse nature of the cottages and range from £179,000 to over £500,000.
